

International association of physics students (IAPS)

History & Aims

IAPS is an association of physics students and student societies from around the globe, working to promote peaceful collaboration amongst them. The members are represented by national and local committees, who meet regularly to ensure the relevance of their activities.

Since 1987, the IAPS has worked continuously to support friendly relations and collaboration between physics students. They support their members in their academic and professional work, as well as discussing and acting on scientific, social and cultural issues. IAPS is a recognised non-governmental organisation run entirely by students from around the world with a spirit of mutual understanding and equality. IAPS runs an annual International Conference for Physics Students (ICPS), visits to global research institutions, summer schools, exchange programmes and multinational meetings all over the world.

Members

Currently IAPS has around 100 Individual Members.

Cooperation with GIREP

The formal cooperation between IAPS and GIREP was established on July 8th, 2015. A detailed documentation can be found in GIREP Newsletter number 57 (https://girep.org/newsletters/newsletter_2016_03.pdf).

Collaboration agreement between International Association of Physics Students and
International Research Group on Physics Teaching

The International Association of Physics Students (IAPS) and International Research Group on Physics Teaching (GIREP) agree to collaborate on topics of mutual interest regarding improvements of physics teaching and learning.

In particular, the collaboration will manifest itself by exchange of information through websites, journals and newsletters and by sending information materials for each other's conferences to one another.

Both organizations agree to send a representative member to each other's summer conferences, following their respective rules and regulations.

Wrocław, Poland, July 8th, 2015.
